Til Death Do Us Part Chicago History Museum— "Chicago Ties the Knot" and Graceland Cemetery

Thursday, October 14, 2010

Join us for a day at the Chicago History Museum. The Chicago History Museum cares for, showcases, and interprets 22 million authentic pieces of Chicago and U.S. history. Their goal is to assemble and maintain a collection that reflects the rich diversity of Chicago Delight today in Chicago stories as told by our guides.

Were you married in Chicago? Think back to what that day was like. Today we join our tour guide for a trip back in time as we explore the exhibition "I Do! Chicago Ties the Knot." This temporary exhibit explores the array of wedding costume traditions, from the ring to the veil to the gown, with nearly 45 ensembles worn by various members of wedding parties dating back to the city's founding.

You will also have time to discover other exhibits at the Museum. Some of the highlights include items worn by Abraham Lincoln and Michael Jordan; stained glass designed by Frank Lloyd Wright; materials from the Great Chicago Fire and the World's fairs of 1893 and 1933; a collection of items from Kukla, Fran, and Ollie; and exhibits from the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters.

This afternoon we meet our guide at Graceland Cemetery. People are attracted to Graceland Cemetery for its architectural masterpieces, local history, and beauty. Graceland holds fascinating stories of private eyes and public figures; baseball and boxing greats, merchants and inventors, and other unique Chicago individuals.
